Who is going?

Debby and I will be there!

I haven't heard from anyone other than Jerry D.

Okay, gang, so it turns out there is an endurance race on Sunday at 8 a.m. For only $50, racers can enter and run the first 30 minutes as an Australian Pursuit race. See this link for an example: www.nas aracing.net/australian-pursuit-races-at-spr-and-vir/

Sounds like a fun time, the price is great, and that's a time of day when the cars and drivers should be running well.

Great weekend! Had so much fun out there!

Here's the rear view of Sunday's race. Interesting start then the rest is mostly boring.

Will publish the other videos soon.

I don't remember a more frustrating weekend than this past one. Even when my a-arm broke when I was leading a race, that was preferable to just watching everyone else out on the track. And even when I got to race on Sunday, I had to come in because my window net decided to give way (you can see it in Jerry's rear facing camera).

But all that aside, thanks to everyone who helped get my car running again. Although I only got to be on the track once the whole weekend, I truly appreciate the help. I couldn't have done even that race without you all.

For those of you who missed the "fun" race, it was fun for me. I was in a battle with 944s and a E30 the entire race.

Bummer about Everett's and Patrick's cars. Everett was climbing up my tailpipe when he was meat balled.

I'll post some first lap videos.
