944-SPEC - 944SPEC - low cost wheel to wheel racing Generated: 6 September, 2025, 13:51

Help - Scratches on cylinders? Posted by Omn3d0n - 16 Mar 2009 03:54
Hi,
So we taken apart the motor and found some scratches
on the cylinders. What can I do?
Help
Sid
Re:Help - Scratches on cylinders? Posted by joepaluch - 16 Mar 2009 04:39 depends what they leak like. Lines are not ceretables Lines are pretty common. Scretche are things you depends what they look like. Lines are not scratches. Lines are pretty common. Scratche are things you can catch a finger nail on. These may or may not be usable. It all depends.
If they are too bad the block is junk.
Re:Help - Scratches on cylinders? Posted by SvoChuck - 16 Mar 2009 04:45 whereis home Sid? I have 3 blocks in my back yard 4 if you count chris's.
Re:Help - Scratches on cylinders? Posted by Omn3d0n - 16 Mar 2009 04:55
Hi,

944-SPEC - 944SPEC - low cost wheel to wheel racing

Generated: 6 September, 2025, 13:51 I am in Milwaukee. The car is an 83. Anywhere close with a 1 or two hours would be great. Thanks Sid Re:Help - Scratches on cylinders?
Posted by joepaluch - 16 Mar 2009 04:57 I a still not convinced the block you have is bad. Re:Help - Scratches on cylinders?
Posted by Sterling Doc - 16 Mar 2009 07:23 Sid, Pictures would be helpful - need to know if they are real scratches, of just little abrasions. I've got some resources for you. I know Nick has a couple of complete motors, Ray & I have one, and &guot; A Part Above" has blocks in the Ohio (they're new sponsor as well, details coming. Keep us posted!