

New on the block

Posted by rlw - 20 Apr 2010 08:38

I just purchased a 1983 944 I plan on turning into a 944spec car. I will have to get my racing license but I plan on getting the car ready in the mean time. The engine needs replacing and I already have a new engine I can drop in to get the car running. The car needs a lot of work but I am looking forward to the project. I have not seen a lot of traffic in the southeast part of this forum, but hopefully there are people out there. This is really going to be a learning process for me being that I have not done a lot of work on cars but I know how to read, listen, and work patiently. Hopefully there are some of you out there that can point me in the right way. Any tips or advice would be greatly appreciated. My current goal is to get a running car and then start working on the roll cage installation and getting some track time.

=====

Re:New on the block

Posted by mcmmotorsports - 31 Oct 2011 18:18

Well, first off, 944-Spec is a NASA sanctioned series where the other class is privately owned and operated. Their cars are also very different. While a 944-Spec built racer built to our ruleset can participate in 944Cup classes (though not very competitively), a 944Cup car built to their rules can not race in 944-Spec. If you are looking for an AFFORDABLE 944 racing class, 944-Spec is the answer. A quick look at their rules vs ours will answer all of your questions. If you still have some, post 'em here and I will be more than happy to answer them. After all, I had two wins in 944Cup before I decided to prep the car for 944-Spec and come and have fun.

=====

Re: New on the block

Posted by michaelreich - 31 Oct 2011 19:31

I don't mean to hijack the post, but Mike are you going to be at Road Atlanta in December? My son and I have been running HPDE1 this year and I would really like to spend some quality time with you to discuss the transition of our car.

Thanks,

Michael

=====

Re: New on the block

Posted by mcmmotorsports - 01 Nov 2011 02:03

Yes, as of right now I will be at RA. Would love to talk to you guys.

=====

Re: New on the block

Posted by JUSTMERACING - 01 Nov 2011 14:58

Beware of "quality" time with Michael. Just sayin

=====

Re: New on the block

Posted by michaelreich - 01 Nov 2011 15:06

that's funny...

=====